LLUS09-BLL-ENGL-1109/ Short Stories from around the World

Instructor: Dr. Turni Chakrabarti (turni.chakrabarti@jgu.edu.in)

This undergraduate programme elective and cross-elective course of 4 credits.

Course Description:

This elective course will introduce students to short fiction from around the world. Students will focus on both form and content: we will learn about the short story as a genre, while also exploring questions of family, community, race, class, gender, migration, and identity. We will begin in the late nineteenth century and end in the present day and pay attention to how these stories portray themes such as familial relationships, agency, oppression, resistance, power, and radical empathy. Students will learn the skills of literary analysis and interpretation by engaging with short fiction. We will read stories written in English as well as stories that have been translated into English.

Learning Objectives:

By the end of this course, students will

1. Be able to do close readings of short stories while connecting them to their historical, economic, and socio-cultural contexts;
2. Be able to evaluate, interpret, and critically analyze the key elements of short stories;
3. Become familiar with the ways in the short story has evolved from the 19th century to the present day;
4. Be able to write clearly and persuasively about the topics that we have engaged with over the semester.

Stories we will read:

1. Guy de Maupassant, "The Necklace" (1884)
2. Chekov, Anton. "Home" (1887)
3. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, "The Yellow Wallpaper" (1892)
